

Earth is over four and a half billion years old. The seven billion humans alive today are unaware the consequences of their actions are close to being irreversible. Animals, and others in the natural world, meet to decide if they will attempt to help the human species understand the necessity of changing their thinking and attitudes. In the hope that imagination will always triumph over cruelty, they enlist the help of young people from Namibia, Denmark, the United States, India, Lebanon, Russia and the Czech Republic.

After two incidents get the world's attention, a chimpanzee and orangutan, using sign language, hire an attorney to bring a legal action against the human species for depraved indifference. The young people agree to be named as co-defendants.
